"The skills I learned in the Master of Science in Palliative Care program help me not only in pharmacy, but in everyday life. Delivering serious news, addressing burnout (caregiver and clinician), and providing culturally sensitive care are but a few of the skills you will build in this program. If you take care of seriously ill patients, you will not want to miss this amazing opportunity. Clinical pearls, communication skills, and interdisciplinary colleagues are but a few of the things you will gain from this program. The instructors in the University of Maryland Master of Science in Palliative Care program are THE nationally known leaders in this rapidly growing specialty. Why would you ever pass up an opportunity to learn and work with that caliber of healthcare professional?"
